R. H. KNAPPEN

Appropriately enough, in the July issue of The Saturday Evening Post, there appeared an article by Harry Scherman entitled "Invisible Greenbacks! The Way Inflation Will Come to This Country If We Are Fools Enough to Let It!" Many of you read that article, and no doubht most of those who read it immediately recognized the truth of the author's remarks and realized just how subtly we are being drawn into ruinous inflation through conditions over which we can exercise curative or, rather, preventive control.

According to Mr. Scherman, who has made an exhaustive study of the situation, "Every 'runaway inflation' in history has had the same prime cause: an enormous sudden increase in the money being used by the people.

"Such a swift increase in our own nation's money-supply is now taking place—invisibly! And it is we—tens of millions of patriotic citizens—who are responsible for most of that increase. Through negligence, of course, but does that make any difference?

"By failing to buy War Savings bonds, with money we can spare for that purpose, we are continually forcing the United States Treasury to create new money with which to pay its war bills.

"There is a stark truth with such grave possible consequences that every adult in the land must be made to understand it, and soon."

Linking the cause to the individual, it is suggested that you take from your purse or wallet $18.75, a sum that most people have over and above their monthly living costs. That amount would have purchased a War Savings bond that matures at $25. By failing to buy that bond the federal government was forced to create exactly $18.75 of new money with which to meet its steadily mounting obligations, "—bills which could have been paid with that money you now hold gingerly in your hand."

This mass negligence, this procrastination of the individual multiplied by tens of millions, is leading us, month by month, toward disaster as great as "anything the Germans and Japanese can do to destroy American civilization!"

The "new money" we are, through our negligence in buying war bonds, forcing the government to create is not actual money. It is "new commercial bank deposits created by the extension of bank credit to the government."

It is urgently important, Mr. Scherman believes, that the layman grasp an understanding of these new bank deposits: ". . .they will buy anything that printing-press money could buy. In this respect they are not one whit different from the green dollar bills you handle every day. They may fairly be dubbed, for short, 'invisible greenbacks'."

We may be assured that the government is seeking to raise the billions of dollars necessary for the war the hard way—through the selling of war bonds to the individual and by a program of heavy taxation. In other words, it is trying to avoid the creation of "invisible greenbacks" in amounts that would overload our already topheavy money economy.

But to accomplish its purpose, to paint the spectre of inflation from the national scene, the government must have the full and constant cooperation of the people. The buying of war bonds has ceased to be a patriotic gesture in this most expensive of all wars, and has become, in-

MORE MEN NEEDED FOR MILITIA UNIT

Meeting Monday evening at the home of T. A. Cutting on North Central avenue, a group of men interested in forming a local unit of the California State militia welcomed a new recruit, Robert Weaver. There exists, however, the necessity of enrolling several more men in order to secure a license from the state. In order to be officially recognized a minimum of eight members is required.

The Campbell group is aiming at an organization considerably over the minimum, but a license will be applied for upon the enrollment of eight members.

To this end, every man not too deeply engaged in some other phase of home defense is urged to meet with the leaders of the movement at Mr. Cutting's home Monday night at eight o'clock. Further discussion of the aims of the militia will be in order for the benefit of new recruits, and formal organization of the unit will be made provided the minimum number of men are present.

Any man who has failed to consider the militia as a means of doing "his bit" for fear he will be too deeply involved in something he can't get out of, should set his mind at rest on that point. The militia will be called into service only in the event of invasion, and will then serve only in the confines of his county. The financial obligation is negligible, and the outfit is slated to disband at the end of the war. Attend Monday's meeting and learn more about it.

Students Sign Up for Work

The office for registrants for orchard work at the high school signed up almost en tout, 328 of the 340 boys on the roster at the close of school, and of nearly 400 girls, 300 signed up.

Of these about 90 per cent were employed and others were starting this week, as the apricot harvest developed.

Stray will give a practice drill; Dr. W. I. Merrill will give an explanation of war gases and proper protection against them; the volunteer fire department will hold a gas mask drill and a fire demonstration under the direction of Chief Jack Scott; and Mr. Drummond will give an explanation of the air plane observation post.

The closing feature will be the taking of the oath of allegiance by all members of the civilian defense organization.

REGISTRATION DROPS 13.7 PER CENT SINCE 1940

Registration of voters in Santa Clara county has dropped 13.7 per cent since the general election of 1940, according to the report of registration made by Frank Hogan, county clerk, to the secretary of state.

In 1940, when the last general election was held, there were 100,142 registered voters in this county, and in June of this year the total was 86,412. Population of the county, during the two-year period, has shown an increase of 2.5 per cent.

For the most part, the drop in registration is attributable to cancellation of registration following the general elections held two years ago, because of failure to vote at either the August Primary or November general election. Registration books will be closed on July 16 for the primary election; therefore any citizen who has changed his place of residence or has changed his legal name, and any citizen who has reason to think that his registration has been cancelled, should make sure of his registration without delay.

Registrations may be made at the Farley real estate office.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Townsend of Merced visited Tuesday and Wednesday with the former's parents, Dr. and Mrs. A. B. Townsend of North Union avenue.

Curtis Monroe Langford, 20, of San Jose, and Vivian Jean Fraser, 20, of Campbell, were applicants at the marmiage license bureau Wednesday.

NOEL VOGE NOW IN U. S., SANS BRIDE

Noel Voge, son of Mrs. Lillian Voge, who had been in Europe for five years is now in the United States, having arrived on the Drottningholm.

However, he was obliged to leave his bride in Lisbon, while he is endeavoring to get a visa from the State Department at Washington so that she may follow him.

His mother is in receipt of a letter stating that he expected to secure the needed visa in a few weeks, but he plans to come west and will be here about the 17th.

The story of his marriage is like the stories we read, only this was stern reality.

Voge met his bride, a Yugoslav girl, Marjeta Jirku while he was attending the University of Zagreb, but her father demanded that he get a job before giving consent to her marriage. So he went to Vienna and got a job only to have to give it up a few days later when the Germans notified all Americans they must depart within ten days.

A hurry-up call brought his bride-elect to Vienna to be married before he had to leave, but officials denied them permission because he had no passport which the Nazis had confiscated.

She returned to her family in Yugoslavia, and Noel went to Portugal, where he spent eight months pleading with officials to issue a visa for his fiancee so she could enter that country. Meanwhile, she was appealing to Yugoslav officials for a passport to leave that country.

Both eventually succeeded and the ceremony was held in Lisbon on June 12, the authorities allowing him to leave his nearby internment camp for a few hours and then permitting her to spend a week with him in the camp before the Drottningholm sailed.

Members of the Unitarian service committee working abroad were very helpful and gave them a wedding dinner at a Lisbon hotel after the rites were finally consummated.

Rites Wednesday For Mrs. Miranda

Mrs. Juana Miranda passed away July 5 in San Jose, and funeral services were held Wednesday from St. Martin's church in Burbank, with interment in Santa Clara Catholic cemetery.

Mrs. Miranda was the wife of the late Antone Miranda, mother of Manuel, Tony and John Miranda of Campbell and Mrs. Ida Silva of San Jose. She was a native of Madeira, aged 78 years.

Friday afternoon Frank Steindorf was host at a picnic for his pickers on his cherry orchard on Kirk road. Seventy tons of cherries were picked there this season.

BUDGET TIME!

It's local budget time! And in a year that finds America engaged in the most gigantic and costly war of all time, it's on the local home front that the pruning shears of wise and rigorous economy must be practiced if citizens are to fill their obligations to the war program.

The public cannot meet the costs of staggering war taxes, invest in war bonds, set aside savings for the future, make contributions to service organizations if, at the same time, non-essential spending proceeds to raid family budgets.

Citizens are meeting rationing with ready good will. They are doing with less sugar, less gasoline, less driving. They are foregoing many needed purchases and a host of services they once took for granted. They ask, in all fairness, that there be rationing of non-essential government services as well, knowing that a nation fighting for its very life can neither afford, nor condone, peacetime luxuries.

Secretary Morgenthau's words apply with equal justice to the taxmaker and private individual, "The patriotic conscience of every American should extend to every American pocketbook. Every time you are about to spend your money, that conscience should ask, 'Can't you do without it?' " Wise householders are heeding the Treasury's advice to "build up a nest egg for their families in the future." They are investing in war stamps and bonds, liquidating old debts, establishing and building up savings accounts to meet next year's federal taxes and provide for post - war security. They're rationing their income for victory.

July being local budget time, it's up to them to see that their victory budgets aren't jeopardized by free-spending public budgets!

THE POOR LITTLE RICH BOY

Montgomery Ward Thorne, aged 8, has an allowance of $500 a month as son of the fourth wife of the Montgomery mail order heir. His mother has asked a Chicago judge to increase the kid's allowance, saying:

"I don't want a spoiled boy, but the expenses make it necessary that Monty assume a larger share of keeping up the home. Monty insists on having his little friends accompany him swimming and to the theater and to dinner at the club."

Monty, his mother added, spends $25 monthly for swimming lessons, $50 for a lifeguard, $100 for medical and dental services, $50 for clothes, and $320 for entertainment and miscellaneous.

Poor Monty!

He'll never know the thrill of looking hopefully for weeks before Christmas at a red sled in a window—and hinting at home—and hoping—and then waking up on Christmas morning to throw himself at that sled. He'll never know what it means to a boy to earn his first dollar, nickel by dime by nickel, and then ask his mother if he can't buy her a silk dress—knowing all the time she'll let him spend it for what he wants.

He's got that allowance increase by now, probably.

Poor kid.

WAR GASES

By DR. WARD L. MOULD
Medical Gas Officer
U. S. Office of Civilian Defense

III—MUSTARD GAS

The "persistent" gases (those which will remain in or "contaminate" an area for a long time) are intended to burn the skin, or injure the lungs or eyes. The two principal members of the group are mustard and lewisite. They will remain in an area for several days or weeks, depending on the weather. The presence of gas can usually be detected by its odor. The sense of smell is the best gas detector known.

Mustard gas smells like garlic or horseradish, and can be detected in very low concentrations, even in concentrations below that capable of producing injury. However, if one stays in even a very low concentration for a long enough period injury might result.

Mustard gas will penetrate any porous material in time. It will be held away from the body by heavy clothing for a short period. The clothing, once it has been penetrated by the gas, is a source of danger because it will hold the gas in intimate contact with the skin.

Even if no neutralizing steps are taken following exposure to mustard vapor, it is usually four to six hours or longer before any discomfort is experienced. The individual may then have a sensation of smarting or burning skin, much the same as if he had been sunburned. His eyes will smart, burn, and water as if they had tobacco smoke in them. He may have a mildly sore throat, a nasal discharge and cough, as in the symptoms of a common cold. If exposure has been more severe, blisters will appear in the "sunburn" area of the skin, the eyes will burn and water more, and the "common cold" symptoms will accumulate. If severe injury is sustained all the symptoms will be exaggerated, but this should rarely occur if prompt steps are taken upon exposure to mustard gas vapor.

If a person's skin comes in actual contact with liquid mustard gas, the injury wil be more severe at the point of "contamination" but not as extensive as a vapor burn. This will come from remaining in an area contaminated by the mustard vapor. Even with liquid mustard there will seldom be any symptoms for one or two hours. A blister usually appears rather promptly after symptoms develop from a liquid injury.

Unless the amount of liquid is very great the burn will be like that caused by an equal amount of very hot grease. It will take longer in healing than the grease burn but should cause no greater alarm.

Liquid mustard in the eyes will cause serious damage unles washed out immediately. Even after first aid has been administered, the eye requires a doctor's attention. But taking cover during a gas attack will eliminate possible injuries from falling drops of liquid mustard gas.

Included among the scriptural selections will be: "And as they were eating, Jesus took bread, and blessed it, and brake it, and gave it to the disciples, and said, Take, eat; this is my body. And he took the cup, and gave thanks and gave it to them, saying, Drink ye all of it;" (Matt. 26: 26, 27).

Oat Blast

It has been shown experimentally, say T. Johnson and A. M. Brown, in Scientific Agriculture, that the amount of oat blast is readily influenced by the nutritional conditions of the oat plant from the time the spikelets are initiated until just prior to the emergence of the panicle. Any adverse influence on the normal nutritional conditions of the plant during this period tends to increase the amount of blast. At this stage of growth, the amount of blast has been experimentally increased by (1) reducing the water supply; (2) withholding mineral nutrients; (3) artificially injuring the leaves; (4) leaf injury caused by rust; and (5) growing oat plants under progressively diminishing day-length.

THE BOOK MARK

Drivin' Woman" by Elizabeth Pickett Chevalier.

The Literary Guild has chosen this novel as their July selection, and a more thrilling, exciting and adventuresome story has not been written since Margaret Mitchell wrote "Gone With the Wind." When I started reading it, I said to myself "If this book is anything like Margaret Mitchell's book, everybody will want to read it," and the deeper I went into the story the more excited I became, for I have catalogued "Drivin' Woman" in the "Gone With the Wind" section.

America Moncure, the titian haired "Drivin' Woman" dominates the reader's very soul as she dominates, controls and drives those souls that touch her life in Miss Chevalier's book. Frankly, I admit that the heroine's name "America" bothers me. Not because the character is not worthy of the name, but because "America" is not a word to be personalized in fiction. When she was called Miss Merry I felt better, but that is a very minor detail and has no bearing on the greatness of the work as a whole.

The war between the states is over when the story begins. The time is from 1865 and covers the following fifty years. With the loss of home, fortune, father and two brothers, staring her in the face Miss Merry turns to the future with a heavy heart but an unlimited supply of courage and the will to work. Being Virginia born and bred she finds it difficult to establish herself in Kentucky where she went after the war.

It is the spirit of America Moncure, the "drivin' spirit" that permeates the theme of the book. The account of her marriage to Kentucky's river boat gambler constitutes one of the most thrilling and unusual incidents of all. Fant Annable, her husband, was one of the colorful, daring and technically skilled gamblers in the development of American trade supremacy.

It is with the tobacco industry that the book deals primarily. On a broad scope it embraces the whole fascinating cycle of this great American industry and the most dramatic period of the industry's growth. From the very beginning, when tobacco was first cultivated, to its present far-reaching market, the history of tobacco is told vividly and dramatically, and with its history we have a great and powerful tale of an independent and glamorous woman whose life was paralleled with the rise of the cigarette.

It's common sense to be thrifty. If you save you are thrifty. War Bonds help you to save and help to save America. Buy your ten per cent every pay day.

Comedy Featured In New Ice Follies At Winterland

Comedy of a new type is presented by Shipstad and Johnson in their all-new Ice Follies of 1942, now showing nightly at Winterland in San Francisco.

For the first time on any ice surface, a group comedy number, "The Daffy Draftees," is offered in the latest edition of the world's greatest musical revue on ice. It brings together a cast of ten in a hilarious pantomimic skit that portrays the trials and tribulations of eight confused neophytes in Uncle Sam's armed forces, as they answer their first reveille.

A squad on skates is something new under the sun and might well be recommended to the War Department to take its place beside the new ski-troops and parachute battalions that have lately been added to the army.

Mass comedy is one of the most difficult arts in the entertainment world. It requires perfect synchronization and timing so that the gag or gesture of one participant does not nullify or detract from the actions of the others. It took more than three months of solid rehearsal to perfect the new "Daffy Draftees' routine.

Bud McNulty acts as the drill sergeant of the draftees and Marjorie Lang portrays the Army Hostess. The climax of the number, a surprise, is fast and laugh-provoking.

Another special daytime showing of the complete night program of the Ice Follies, with all of the 103 international skating stars appearing, has been announced for Saturday, July 18. The matinee will start at 2:30.

Garden Worms That Talk

Earthworms actually communicate with each other by faint sounds emitted by their mouths, according to a German scientist. This is reported in an article about worms in the magazine You're Wrong About That. The worm voices, asserts the article, "are used in emitting faint sounds, rarely in solo number but generally in series marked by a definite and changing rhythm. So apparent is this rhythm that it leads to the conclusion that these sounds are broadcast with the object of communication. The sounds resemble the clicking and ticking of a mass of infinitesimal clocks and can be heard quite clearly."

Jack Anderson to Give Radio Talk

In one of the most important radio talks of his career, Congressman John Z. (Jack) Anderson, who represents this district in the House of Representatives, will take to the air between 6 and 6:15 o'clock, Friday night, July 10, over station KQW, San Jose. The Congressman will give a report to the people of his district on the war situation as he sees it in Washington.

The Eighth District Representative, two and one half years ago sponsored a project for the development of guayule, rubber producing plant, in California. It was not until the spring of this year, that the program was finally adopted, and the project launched in the Salinas valley. Anderson will discuss what is happening in regard to this situation in Washington.

In addition Anderson will tell of his work in Congress during the last four years, citing his attempts to have enemy aliens deported, and his fight to halt the sale of scrap iron to Japan. He will give a brief resume of the entire war picture from the Washington standpoint.

The talk Friday will mark the inauguration of Congressman Anderson's campaign for re-election.

THE statement credited to a young woman worker with the Y.M.C.A. overseas in which she expressed her surprise to find that natives of Australia, whom she had encountered at the front, really spoke very good English, served to remind Will Hogg, the Texas oil-man, of a remark which he overheard a fellow-Texan make following the latter's home-coming from foreign service with the A.E.F.

The returned one, according to Hogg, was a typical son of the remote Panhandle. Somebody asked him, on the day of his arrival in his native village, what he thought of the French people.

"We—ll," drawled the veteran, "I reckin' on the whole they mean well, but they're powerfully stupid—dumb, as you might say. Why, here they've been talkin' French all their lives and yet they couldn't understand as much of their own language as our fellows picked up in just two or three months over there."

The historic saloon in Washington, D. Newcomers who had heard of Shoomaker's were disappointed because it looked like an overcrowded storeroom with cobwebs all around. In spite of its unkempt appearance the order here was excellent. Any patrons who became too boisterous were asked to leave.

The FARMERS CORNER

by RALPH H. TAYLOR
Executive Secretary Agricultural Council of California

In war-time, changes occur which, in normal times, would make Page 1 headlines, but which are harlly noted, or at least little considered, when interest is centered on the war effort.

Such a change has "happened here," and while the public in a vague way undoubtedly knows about it, few have stopped to ponder what it will mean to the California of tomorrow.

The story is this:

California, during the past 12 months, has gained in population nearly a million new residents. The defense worker migration to this state has out-stripped anything that happened in "the days of gold," or in the drab days which came after the Dust Bowl.

Conservatively, 800,000 persons have moved into the state since the war production program was inaugurated, aside from the military. In ordinary times, every chamber of commerce in the state would be bragging about it; the All Year club and Californians, Inc., would be devoting three-color pamphlets to it; legislative committees would be resolving about it—and the real estate industry would have the welcome sign hung on every lamp post.

But because the national emergency has over-shadowed all other events, the changes in California have received scant attention, even from our boost bodies. Yet much of this new population will undoubtedly remain after the war is over—and California has permanently changed status during the war period. It has become one of the top-ranking industrial states in the Union.

California has undertaken the tremendous job of producing more than one-tenth of all the war materials that the country needs for victory. Yet it has little more than one-twentieth of the nation's total manpower, even with its recent phenomenal gains in population.

What will happen after the war is over? Will the great manufacturing and industrial concerns dismantle their plants here and return to Chicago, Pittsburg, and New York, or the old industrial centers of the New England States? Or will California retain, in peace time, the industrial leadership which it attained in war?

Will California be able to absorb into its peace-time economy the million new citizens who have come here to build war equipment? Or will thousands of them, thrown out of employment by shut-downs in war industries, go on the relief rolls and become a semi - permanent charge against the taxpayers?

The question is of vital importance to the whole state. It is of particular importance to California agriculture, for this state's farming industry, long compelled to ship the bulk of its products to the eastern seaboard, will benefit tremendously if it has a greatly increased industrial population to feed right here. Conversely, agriculture will be one of the worst sufferers if factories close down and relief rolls lengthen.

Inevitably, there will be serious dislocations during the post-war period, and no one, at this time, can safely forecast how long it will take nor how much it will cost to shift from war production to the production of consumer goods. California will have one of the most serious problems to cope with when the war is ended. But in this writer's opinion, California, if its leaders have the necessary foresight and vision, will retain its newly-won industrial leadership. A vast reservoir of power and raw materials is here to make this state an ideal location for big industries; there is an ideal workers' climate here; there are shipping facilites here, near at hand, to tap the new markets which will doubtless be opened up in the Pacific. Here, too, is the No. 1 farm state of the nation, capable of feeding and clothing a population double or treble that which California has today. And industry, we believe, has come to stay; it is probably one of the most significant changes in our economic history.

Vaudeville Revue At S. F.'s Curran

Vaudeville in a new, modern, streamline form is the rage of New York and other eastern cities. This new version is a vaudeville revue, made up entirely of headliners, with a swift pace that offers just the type of clever, bright entertainment we all crave today.

On July 13, Fred F. Finklehoffe will present such a Vaudeville Revue "Show Time" at the Curran theater, San Francisco, with a group of brilliant stars heading the cast, direct from New York.

George Jessel, master of ceremonies for the show, has starred in vaudeville, musical shows, drama and pictures, and is known to thousands for his telephone conversations with his "Mom" on his radio program; Jack Haley is the clever comedian of stage and screen who always seems to be the Patsy; Ella Logan is a Scotch lass who sings a "mean" song and has a "way about 'er;" Kitty Carlisle has made her mark in operetta and drama as well as musical films; while the De Marcos are famous from coast to coast as the country's outstanding ballroom dancing team.

Featured with these stars will be Buck and Bubbles, Olsen and Shirley, Lucienne and Ashour, and Con Colleano.

There will be matinees as well as evening performances every day including Sunday; and two special performances on Saturday at 11:30 p. m., and on Sunday at 5:30 p. m.

stead, a grim necessity. If we, the people, fail to realize in time our perilous situation, the government will be obliged to set in motion plans to finance the war through the federal reserve banks, thereby creating staggering sums of "invisible greenbacks" the presence of which would lead eventually to a period of inflation fully as ruinous as that experienced by Germany after the first World war.

Inflation completely wrecked German economy, and indirectly was responsible for the rise of Hitler. A ruined people, looking for succor, were eager for a Messiah to lead them out of the wilderness—and they got one. It can happen here, "if we are fools enough to let it."

CAN AND PLAN FOODS AND MEALS

U.S. NEEDS US STRONG

EAT NUTRITIONAL FOOD

The good old Yankee custom of putting up food for the winter is being practised throughout the land this summer. No doubt you too, will be filling pantry and cooler shelves while orchard and field crops are plentiful.

For fruits and berries the shortage of sugar is not too serious a check. Some berries can be put up in natural juices without sugar. Or you can stretch your sugar allotment by the use of honey for sweetening. Jams and jellies or syrup for fruit can be made with all honey or half honey and sugar.

For vegetables do not trust old methods for cold or hot pack. Seek the latest and safest methods from the U. S. Department of Agriculture, your State Extension Service or this company's home economists. It is wasteful and dangerous to can vegetables by improper methods. Food is a munition of war. Buy it right. Cook it right. Can it right.
